County Farm Leaders Close Conference

President of County Farm Bureaus from throughout Florida closed their 1957 annual conference in Gainesville today.

The group representing the majority of 58 counties, have been meeting daily since Sunday in the Hotel Thomas and Florida Farm Bureau's new state headquarters building. This was their first conference in the new structure, which is considered one of the finest of its kind in the nation.

These farm leaders, as in past years, discussed agricultural problems on the local, state and national level; swapped ideas and dined together. "Some met each other for the first time; others renewed acquaintances of long standing; but all left the conference with a feeling of mutual respect and understanding," according to T. K. McClane, Jr., executive vice-president, Florida Farm Bureau. Farm Bureau organizations are now active in 58 Florida counties. The groups are composed of farm families, who elect their own officers once a year. Each county unit is affiliated with the Florida Farm Bureau Federation, which in turn is affiliated with the American Farm Bureau, headquartered in Chicago.

Faye Emerson Stars At Playhouse Monday

"Glad Tidings", an impudent, romantic comedy in which Melvyn Douglas appeared in New York during the 1951 season, will be presented by Mary Howes at the Palm Beach Playhouse for a week's engagement beginning on Monday, March 4th. This Edward Mabley comedy of a sophisticated "tug of war" between two ladies over a man who is the fiancé of one of them and an old flame of the other, stars Faye Emerson as a flamboyant movie star, with Murray Matheson opposite her as a globe-trotting newspaperman.

"Glad Tidings" tells of the predicament facing the journalist when a wild out, sowed 20 years before, turns up to complicate his coming marriage with his beautiful and rich boss. On his birthday, the famous movie actress, the toast of four continents and his former old flame, appears on the scene with a daughter he didn't know they had had.

The movie star, who brings these glad tidings so unexpectedly, still has a crush on the vagabond scribbler and thinks that it is about time that he take up the belated responsibilities of fatherhood. The latter, fiancé, seeing a hoax to cheat her out of her man, refuses to believe the story and commences the uproarious battle of wits over him. Brooks Atkinson of the New York Times reported that the play had "an impudent sense of humor and originality of viewpoint," all of which contributed to a successful Broadway engagement. Appearing in the cast as the unexpected, bouncy daughter is Janet de Gore, with Rory Harrity as her half-brother by another father; Robert Gallagher as the movie star's harras-eed and psychiatry-befuddled manager; and others in the cast include Brook Bryon, Peggy Van Wleet, and Richard Poston.

John Holden has directed "Glad Tidings", and an unusually effective outdoor setting has been designed by William J. Ryan.

Now playing for the last times this week, with a matinee Saturday at 2:40 p. m. is glamorous June Havoc in Louis Verneuil's happy comedy, "Affairs of State", in which Miss Havoc is supported by Edmon Ryan, Dennis Hoey, Katherine Meskill, Harry Maffett, and Bernard Fairfax. John Holden has directed "Affairs of State", with a handsome setting by William J. Ryan.

An Open Letter To The People Of Belle Glade

We would like to thank all the good people for their flowers and expressions of sympathy in the death of Doc O. S. Lytleton.

We will never forget your kindness to us in this hour of grief. Our special thanks go to Mr. Sullivan, Doc. Smethe, and the girls of the Drug Store. Also the group of business people around the corner and Mrs. Kirchman, the florist.

We also remember how nice and considerate Mr. Wetherington was to us.

The message and prayer by Rev. Malcolm was wonderful and he certainly is a true minister of God; he will linger in our hearts.

We will always think kindly of you folks and remember Belle Glade as a community of hospitality.

The Family of Ollie S. Lytleton.

180 ACRE GLADES

It's a pleasure to talk of this County's most diversified agriculture located as it is in the back-yard of the social capital of the world—Palm Beach.

The left-overs of European royalty, the elephant riding Rajahs of the Far East, the political big-wigs of Africa, the landowners and cattle barons of South America, the barons of Australian commerce and the reigning plutocrats of the South-west Pacific mix with descendants of Plymouth, Charleston and Tidewater Virginia to assist the children of Standard Oil, Alcoa, Ford, General Motors, the Du Ponts and early rail and fur magnates to demonstrate to Hollywood and the TV just what the "Four Hundred" do in the World's Winter Social Capital—Palm Beach.

Within 45 minutes ride of this winter social capital, and in the same county there was shipped some 40,000 carlot equivalents of agricultural products with an FOB value of $83,500,000 during the 55-56 season.

The early years of World War II brought to Palm Beach County the first Army "A" Award for agricultural production in the war effort, and the car loadings since that time have multiplied in number and variety of winter vegetables and staple crops.

Sweet corn of a quality never before seen by man in such quantity from one county, is a new crop since World War II, and accounted for more than 8,000 carlots worth eight million, plus, for.

Celery from Palm Beach County competes in the continental markets most successfully, and brought in some Seven Millions—plus from 6,287 carlots during the 55-56 season.

Beans, which for a long time have made this county known as the winter bean capital of the Nation ran up a total of 6,900 cars for a FOB value of better than eight million dollars. Cabbage and peppers each accounted for approximately 2,300 carlots and near two and a half million in value!

There were some 1,200 carlots of lettuce and leafy vegetables with enough carrots and radishes to add color and vitamins to the salad bowls of America;

Radishes were a drug on the market and the acreage seemed destined to dwindle until the packers came with the mechanical harvesting and a package of topped, washed and precooled fruit was offered the housewife. Now radish seed are bought by the ton and are found in most every mixed car of vegetables. Getting Palm Beach County's vegetables on the dinner table of America is a product of the outstanding job by sales organizations in the County in the utilization of mixed cars. This item alone accounted for 6,700 carlots last season for a total value of eight to nine millions.

The community not large enough to take a solid car of winter vegetables will place a telephone order this morning for a mixed car which may contain as many as ten to fifteen varieties to be delivered to him by truck. The assembling of these items, sometimes from Pompano to the Glades, or vice versa is a service both to the farmer and to the buyer. Sometimes two communities not too far apart may split a truckload. This feat of getting our agricultural products in the "highway and byways" has proven a great stabilizer and accounts for a considerable volume.

Palm Beach County's vegetables go to each state of the Union, to all Canadian provinces and to practically all the islands of the Caribbean and the major countries of Central and South America.

The railroads, the trucking lines and the steamships benefit yearly to the tune of eight to ten millions for transporting the 40,000 car equivalents to the consumer.

Uncle Sam's armed forces, including the European contingents, like more than a million dollars worth of Palm Beach County vegetables during the past season.

Nursery products and cut flowers brought $5,600,000 in new money to this county during the 55-56 season and paid for citrus and tropical fruits added a $800,000 bundle to the total for the county's agricultural income.

Rice production is being studied by the Everglades Experiment Station and some celery farmers plant rice as a cover crop between plantings. The harvest of the grain has brought in many cases a handsome return as a grain crop, and the field trials by the farmers greatly assist the scientists to iron out the difficulties of rice production in any new territory. Indications are that this County could become a major influence in rice production of high quality and a tonnage per acre equal to the Valley of the River Po, if world conflict demands a live-at-home program.

The two sugar operations of this County accounted for more than 11 millions and includes the largest sugar house in continental U.S. This acreage could be expanded to produce, along with Louisiana and the best sugar states all the sweetening this country needs annually—some 8 and three quarter millions of tons. International policies dictate domestic acreage and American capital invested in citrus areas keep the cracks caulked against expansion by the Palm Beach County farmer.

Poultry and honey, cattle feeds and lawn sod brought in more than a million and a half this past year; this county's honey has become accepted as the entry to beat in the Tampa State Fair—and if that's a "fib", you'll have to admit it's a "sweet un".

Milk from 15,000 dairy animals grossed $6,800,000 last year in an effort to supply the county's needs, and this county produces milk as economically as any of its sources of supply; in the mudlarks around Lake Okeechobee where high nutrient grasses are available year-round a 20% savings may be effected in milk production.

Beef production in Palm Beach County is the refuge of cattle-men from the best beef states of the west and mid-west, for when the "eyes are crossed and the teeth dotted" Palm Beach County's unit investment of $150 withers the comparative figures of $250 to $400 back home. Beef is produced in this county on its year-round high protein grasses for from 7 1/2 to 10¢ per pound. An average of 1.35 calves per acre are produced on these grasses to an average 500-pound weight at a cost of not over 10¢. The Glades cattle auction market, though only six years old is the largest in volume of cattle sales and in dollar receipts in the State. It's a cooperative composed of some 115 cattlemen and serves the county's 100,000 animal industry in an outstanding manner. The USDA selected this market as a model of organization and operation as a basis for an official bulletin to the country's cattlemen.

Ramsey fiber, it is reported, furnished string for the Pharaohs boys to carry around in whatever pockets they had and furnished wrappings for the infant Moses on his trip down the river; this fiber has been transplanted from its original habitat to engage the energy and inventive genius of American mechanical minds to supplant the hand methods of the Ancients in harvesting and preparing the fiber for the textile industry. Last year $1,100,000 worth of Palm Beach County fiber was exported to Europe and Japan, and this industry gives promise of becoming the darling of South Florida agriculture and small industrial plants.

All of these activities add up to an $83,500,000 annual income from the County's agricultural products, and the 40,000 annual carlot movement average seems to be equal or ahead for this season's activities.

Palm Beach County is big in area; Palm Beach County is big in agriculture; Palm Beach County has no peer in the use of mechanical assistance in its agricultural production; Palm Beach County creates no blushes when its agricultural labor is considered from an income standpoint, from the housing, from the educational advantages of its worker's children.

We're a mecca for the "cider" family, insecticide, herbicide, fungicides, weedicides; the fertilizer manufacturer smacks his lips when he considers the potential in this county; the crate and container manufacturer counts his orders in five and ten-carlot quantities.

We have no peers in the intelligent sales effort and distribution of our products, and we're fast reaching the top in preparation for table use of our vegetables.

However, emphasis on the bigness, might cause us to lose sight of the "little fellow" and I'm going to do so in a secret. The family sized farm or ranch, or a combination of the two, in Palm Beach County, offers attractions for family life, satisfying income and enjoyment of the same sunshine and salt water that you find in the Palm Beaches.

Let's take a family-sized farm on a live-at-home basis and see just what the average little farmer might expect. A 160-acre farm in the mudlarks is acknowledged by the scientist and the practical farmer as a subsistence unit. The figures used as to expected returns are conservative, and the activities are coordinated with practical operations.

We'll assume a family of four—Papa, Mama, Johnny and Alice, and we'll allow one hired hand at $56 per week.

To keep Daddy busy we'll give him 40 acres for a dairy operation consisting of 60 milkers and the necessary bulls, a milk barn equipped with a feed room and a refrigerating room for storage of milk and the family deep freeze. To complement the dairy operation Papa will have 40 acres for beef cattle consisting of 30 breed cows and 40 steers for fattening.

The dairy should net $125 per acre and the beef operation $50 per acre; the two will therefore net $7,000 in cash. Papa should grow some corn for his animals; so we will let him plant 70 acres each spring and he should be able to store 175 tons of snap ground corn, which is worth $50 per ton, and which should net him $20 per acre in sales to himself, or $1,400 in cash. We figure Papa will want to plant a combination of rye, oats, Huban and White Dutch clover and alfalfa for winter feed insurance and that he can't resist the temptation to plant a few vegetables. So he can have a cabbage patch, an Irish potato field, and probably a few of the salad vegetables for the fall. We'll just let Daddy pay $7.50 per acre for the use of the land for his vegetables or for pasturing some of the neighbors cattle until corn planting time comes. This will add $525 to the till.

Now, to give Mama, Johnny and Alice a few chores we'll add 2,000 caged hens for a cash egg market, which should bring in $5,000 towards the family income, at a net profit of $250 per cage.

To give a well rounded living-at-home operation, we would plant an orchard consisting of oranges, grapefruit, lemons, lime, tangerines, avocado, mango, guava, banana, and papaya. In the garden mother could have a part row of each of 23 vegetables and always be assured of strawberries and a few pineapple plants will help the salad bowl.

Only time and inclination will limit the shrubbery and cut flowers in the yard.

A pen at the barn would fatten four Poland China porkers during the year from waste vegetables, and corn to provide 150 pounds of meat for each of the four.

Milk, butter and cottage cheese from the dairy, eggs, fryers and baked hams from the poultry flock and an occasional veal stored in the deep freeze would add substance to the table, and honey from a hive or two along the ditch banks will provide sweetener for Grandpa and Grandpa when they come avisting.

Raw sugar can be bought at the mill for the table and black-strap for the cattle.

Now, the family has lived on the "fat of the land" and has $7,000 from dairy and beef, $5,000 from chickens and $1,925 from the cornfield and vegetable operation, for a total of close to $14,000 for family use and savings.

Is this visionary and impractical? Nope, it's entirely practical. In support, we'll furnish figures and show you the caged chickens; we'll let you talk to Mr. Paul Kirchman who runs 5 to 600 beef cattle on 320 acres of land with practically no hired labor. Pauley, incidentally is a Belle Glade Rotarian and maintains a family of five with college in the program of education for his children. We will let you talk to Bob Able, another Rotarian and a former Dakotian, who with two 14 to 15 year old boys on Saturday afternoon penned 720 Brahman steers, sprayed them, cut out 18 for drenching plus some minor treatments, and all this within three hours. One son drove a Farmall wheel tractor, one the Jeep and Bob the pickup in corralling these obstinate animals. There are approximately 1600 beef animals on the ranch, and there is no regularly hired help.

Oldtimers love to tell you of those who came to Palm Beach County and staved off "slow music and flowers" to their economic physical benefit and to finally "run the Master" with a calm and satisfied smile after enjoying the wonders of Nature as typified in Palm Beach County's agricultural pursuits.

The most important CROP we grow in Palm Beach County is the "younguns" and nowhere may they appreciate the bounty of nature more fully and with more returns for integrity, endeavor and finances than in Palm Beach County's agriculture.

Norton Gallery Players To Offer Production "Squaring The Circle"

The Norton Gallery Players 5th major production, "Squaring The Circle" went into rehearsal last week with a cast of 11, who will act and sing in the production. Music by Norton Gallery Players director, Batchlor

Owen will be added to the play, a farce satirizing the Socialist form of government with the lively spirit of "Squaring The Circle", and will inject a love ballad and a spirited march. The opening musical number in the play will be "The Main Thing is Not To Get Panicky". Director, Owen stated that the production will not be a full scale musical, but that "songs had been added to enhance the gay and light spirit of the comedy." "Squaring The Circle" is a little off on young love in the extreme communal apartment housing condition in Russia. It was first done in Russia in 1928 and had a record run. It was banned in 1936 and never produced again. The comedy then played in all the capitals of Europe and on Broadway in 1936.

The cast for the show includes David Ascon, Dottie Kidder, Hall Jackson, Anne Carson, Fern Corbell, Larry Babb, Cash Elin, Anne and Woodie Van Voorhes and Hand and Henry Jewett.

Reservations may be made for the production which is scheduled for March 7-8 and 14-15, by calling the players box office TR 33369 between 1:30 and 6:30 week days.
